insert a PBN or a nofollowed link. So this link is going to be like breadcrumbs to the blogger. So if anyone finds this article via a PBN, the second time they visit it from the same device they would find a link to an article that has a higher rank. Even search engines find this to be a good thing. I am not saying avoid the nofollow or have it on all your links, but to use it intelligently. Most bloggers use it and some even place it with every link. Some of the best SEO sites use this. The Washington Post, Google, and even Niall Jackson. When I show up in the Google organic listing for WordPress blogs or WordPress managed themes, the title and meta description is still in the blog post. I don't think the PBN links affect this at all, just the brand, but they will appear at the bottom of that page as well. An unusual case of Chlamydia trachomatis infected lower urinary tract in a neonate. Chlamydia trachomatis is one of the commonest sexually transmitted organisms. Here, we report a case of Chlamydia trachomatis infection in a neonate which was diagnosed on the basis of pathological investigations and a conventional PCR. A Chlamydia trachomatis infection was diagnosed in a neonate who presented with frequent and intense bladder spasms. An urodynamic investigation showed decreased compliance and sensory urgency voiding dysfunction. Transurethral endoscopic bladder biopsy was taken to diagnose the underlying etiology. Histopathological examination of the bladder biopsy revealed hypertrophied stratified transitional epithelium. Direct immunofluorescence examination of bladder mucosa was suggestive of autoimmune phenomena. Polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technique was used to confirm the diagnosis. Multiplex PCR reported the presence of Chlamydia trachomatis. Antibiotic treatment with oral cefixime led to marked clinical improvement within 1 day of onset of therapy. a criminal record." " The cake just left the room." "N e79caf774b Transcatheter arterial embolization was carried out in 1) 14 cases of myelomatous adenocarcinoma and 2) 19 cases of myelomatous tumor of the cervix. The clinical results of the treatment with transcatheter arterial embolization have been studied by analysis of two groups in the cases of adenocarcinoma of the cervix: 1) 11 cases with adenocarcinoma treated with transcatheter arterial embolization and 2) 13 cases without transcatheter arterial embolization. The following conclusions were drawn: 1) Tumor bleeding is controllable by transcatheter arterial embolization and the bleeding stops or markedly decreases without a decrease in the patient's general condition even if the tumor size increases before operation. 2) Tumor local recurrence and metastasis were not noted and there was no increase in the patient's general condition. 3) The percentage of local recurrence and of distant metastasis were significantly lower in the cases without transcatheter arterial embolization (43.4%) than in the cases with transcatheter arterial embolization (88.2%) (p Q: How to get a fully-qualified Python module path from a file path? I have an import path that happens to be in another directory on the file system, but happens to be on the path to the same module when you import it. It would be nice to be able to include that path in the module's __path__ as well. >>> import os >>> os.chdir('foo/bar') >>> import os >>> os.listdir() ['bar'] I want:
