You

could probably get away with an open source solution like Ubuntu's Musescore. A: If you have some money, go with Guitar Pro, the only thing available for Linux that's comparable. It's also expensive. But it has a very good and intuitive chord chart. Q: AngularJS ng-repeat to create columns of nested objects I'm trying to get something like the following in angular: {{ v.name }} {{ v.description }} {{ v.release }} I'm coming from a table based view so this is really foreign to me. Thanks. A: Not exactly sure how data is structured, but there are many ways to accomplish this. For example, you could create the a function that takes a single object and returns an array of div elements, which allows you to group the data in a format that you want: app.controller('Controller', function($scope) { $scope.data = [{ name: "Test 1", description: "Testing", release: "1.2.1" }, { on "apostates," or those who renounce their faith. In an interview with The New York Times, Mr. Alizadeh, who was wearing traditional Muslim garb and a headdress, said he hoped to bring awareness to the plight of Muslims who call themselves Muslim but are persecuted or even executed in some Muslim-majority countries. "We want to tell Islamic countries to stop the oppression of their people," Mr. Alizadeh said. "It is very important to us to go to a place where Muslims live and do what we can for them." As the Islamic Republic of Iran's highest-profile conversion to Islam, Mr. Alizadeh's visit to Saudi Arabia was portrayed by Iran's media and some Arab and Western news organizations as his coming out party. Mr. Alizadeh's departure from Iran was often accompanied by an image of him, arms crossed, next to his mother and grandmother. His trip, which he had long planned, followed his mother's death, and the deep respect he has for his grandmother made him want to return home a "man of God."Q
