I'm a new programmer, and I'm trying to understand how to work around the "No parameters allowed" error I'm getting. Is there a way to declare a variable in the function (which takes no parameters) without passing it as a parameter? I'm trying to write a function which returns an X,Y value, and sets a variable to that X,Y value. For example: int MyFunc(int x, int y) { int var = x+y; return var; } however the compiler complains because it thinks I'm not passing it a parameter. The only way I've found to work around this is to make a function which takes no parameters, and then calling that function twice. int MyFunc() { int var = x+y; return var; } int MyFunc(int) { int var = MyFunc(); return var; } But I

Hospital readmission is an important indicator of effectiveness of post discharge care. The objective of this study was to determine factors associated with hospital readmission and re-admission of patients to a surgical ward. This retrospective study included all readmitted patients admitted to a surgical ward over a six-month period (January-June 2008) in a teaching hospital in Abidjan, Ivory Coast. Statistical analyses consisted of the Chi square test, Student t-test and logistic regressions. Of 3,213 patients admitted to the surgical ward during the study period, 138 (4.2%) were readmitted. The admission diagnoses were: surgical complications (39%), medical complications (17%), general complications (25%) and medical and surgical complications (13%). Mean time between discharge and readmission was 21 days. Ninety-one patients (65%) were readmitted to the surgical ward. Of the 50 patients who were re-admitted to the same ward, 27 (54%) were readmitted for medical complications. On multivariate analysis, the following factors were associated with an increased risk of readmission: age (OR=1.03, 95% CI=1.01-1.04, P=0.004), cancer diagnosis (OR=3.49, 95% CI=1.83-6.67, P
