Travels! Saturday, June 6, 2014 I LOVE outings as a dog! However, sometimes they are much too much to handle. Praying Prudently was such a problem he didn't want to leave the barn. He cried and yelped for mile after mile. The day was hot, hot, hot and he hated every second of it. He hated the path though the woods - the one we took to get there. He had his travel crate with him, in case we could find something to do to distract him...such as the riverside stop at Malinda Lakes Park. But although we enjoyed the park, he barely fooled around other than to relieve himself and yelp from time to time. That's when we saw the guy with the big tent and the wiggly movie thing. For the first time in a while we drew a crowd! Being that it was hot, we for sure drew a crowd! Giddy up and all that! Our girl, Prudently the Third, made friends immediately! My sweet baby made friends as well! Nala, the horse, seemed to like the Prudently! Nala loves two things - food and shade! Goosebump neck... The wiggly thing, the tent, was amazing. The kids played on it's 'bouncy' thingie a whole while we unloaded camp...cart? trailer? we're not sure of the name to it. The kids played with it and Nala snuggled in the shade the whole time. A couple mentioned that they had seen these kinds of things before...that they called them, kids on stilts, however, we had never seen them. It must not have been in a place where a lot of kids hang out. Kevin's girl both her parents took pictures, however, Kevin and I know we'd be the first ones to take pictures... All in all, the day was great. The kids enjoyed some new things and were so tired when we got home. Praying Prudently really did enjoy the day! Sunday, June 7, 2014 We found Princess Snuggles to be the perfect baby-sitter in the end. All kids were
