CRH2A EMU is the first locomotive of the CRH2 family, which is a combination of CRH and EMU on the same running board. This add-on for Train Simulator is dedicated for the study and analysis of the CRH2A. The entire new pack includes everything to drive as the CRH2A EMU. This pack also includes the following 4 scenarios: C2A01: Get to Know Your Train C2A02: Your First Assignment C2A03: Suining to Chongqing C2A04: Evening Rush Hour WESTERN SICHUAN PASS ROUTE: C2A05: First Direct Service on the Chenglan Route C2A06: Way Back to the Land of Abundance The CRH2A AMH version is an evolution of the original CRH2 that can be identified by the larger number of windows in the side of the locomotive, a more detailed engine cowling with a slightly different shape, as well as the more modern design of the headlight. The classification of this version is as follows: Locomotive type: Unclassified Type of locomotive: Electric multiple unit Frame: EMD SD45ACe Type of train: High speed Base mode type: General freight Driving Coaches: 15 Tractive Effort: 1,077 brake horsepower Powertrain: One motor and eight water-cooled alternators of 1,400 kW each Chains: Four air-cooled smooth-running chains Traction: Totally automatic Weight: 115,000 kg Length: 59.98 m Width: 8.95 m Height: 14.16 m Top speed: 250 km/h Overall length: 9,812 mm The design of this locomotive is based on the North American General Electric - Tier 3 locomotive. The body is electrically powered with the front portion propelled by a continuously variable transmission. What is Steam? Steam is a traditional power source found in Train Simulator in which fuel is burned to produce heat that drives a steam-powered locomotive. Like fossil fuels, steam is a limited energy source, requiring constant upkeep to ensure its supply. Over time, the locomotive becomes starved of steam and must be moved away from the furnace to allow the locomotive to cool. Steam locomotives use smoke as a visual cue, and are best suited for low-

Different AI Behavior at every game: "Generally your Men will be up against Bots that will be more or less passive at every game. Bots will be more or less active and they will be more or less aggressive." Tutorial Level: The tutorial can be played once and is in the beginning (not playable in the first skirmish). No single player tutorials, but you can always use the help & tutorials in the settings menu. Tutorial-Menus: Menu 1, System Settings (The Tutorial) Menu 2, single Player Tutorial (You can only start the Tutorial during one skirmish) Menu 3, Main Game Settings Menu 4, Multiplayer Settings Menu 5, Skirmish Menu 6, Tutorial Settings Menu 7, Options

Not working well - can't buy equipment & soldiers for my army. Ok, so I can't buy anything because the '+' button is disabled. I can buy weapons and items by pressing 'X'. But no way to buy new units. I thought maybe I hadn't bought enough in the bank so I checked the bank. I've got plenty. So why is my '+' button disabled? And why can't I buy troops and equipment with the '+' button? From what I could see and looking through posts in this thread, I had to change the following:

1. Set the turn timer to one turn instead of "Auto"
2. Turn the sensitivity down to about the bottom third of the menu
3. Turn the "Deploy infantry first" to "Always"

That's how I fixed it. I am currently running version 0.34 and I've played about a dozen games with no issues at all. There is a way to remove any previously created AI's, but it requires a lot of work. You have to remove the built in enemies in the game (in main game options, General, Enemies). It is probably easier to start with a new game. Another way is to use a variation on the How to Play AI. That tutorial shows you how to set the AI up. I made a new player and gave him a new mission. This will take him to the 2nd mission. After the 2nd mission, I deleted the mission so he could not return. This left me with a 2nd player enemy (Zombie). After the 2nd game, I placed the Zombie at the beginning of the board. I deleted the opponent (if you wish to keep them after a game). I

What's new in Torn Tales:

. " Many of these "Crossroads Men" made good grades in school. However, "so many homemakers joined the Marine Corps during World War II" that there was "hardly a one to spare to be a grandmother." Cronshaw's report goes on to explain that "a contradiction of the general suppression of a new family is the fact that the [Marine Corps] employs a remarkable number of married men." The report continues, "The silent joy and dedication of the business and professional women of general society enabled the Marines to rise to an unattainable eminence." The boys of the Heavies could go home at night, but the women had to "be at the head of zigzag trenches way out in the dark Pacific, at least three thousand miles from home," and at any hour of the day or night the "lonely women [were] dependent upon unwarranted, invisible courage." Clearly, countless men and women put their lives on the line in order to serve in the military. Are they all heroes? We cannot say. But given their extreme sacrifices, as well as remarkable accomplishments, we would have to say yes.
