Somalia Yanks Fighting for Darts
Over Body The Somaliland People's Front, a rebel group in Somalia's breakaway northern province of Puntland, celebrated the January 1st death of Mogadishu's separatist government with a series of wild parties at the northern town of Bossaso. Thousands of people danced and yelled at the funeral procession. But the mourners were, apparently, ignoring a man dancing at the back of the casket. He was wearing a United States uniform, likely picked up at a Puntland military base. South African diplomats quickly circulated photographs taken at the Bossaso funeral. They say they believe the man in the uniform is former South African Army Lieutenant Stephen Chipnowski, 31, of Modderfontein, South Africa. Chipnowski has been missing since mid-September, when he boarded the tanker Kolkata for a patrol in the Gulf of Aden. His body was later found floating off the coast of Yemen. Hearing the Somaliland People's Front celebrate the death of Omar Bashir, South African Minister of International Relations and Cooperation Ronnie Kasrils said, "This is a very disturbing phenomenon." That reaction was seconded by the Director of the United Nations Office in Nairobi, Belarussian Dokka Umarova. "We're extremely concerned, if reports are true," she said. "We're very worried about this." In Washington, one political party is intent on linking Chipnowski to the diplomatic saga. The Democrats in the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations are preparing a resolution. They say the case has "implications for the entire international community." "For too long, we have watched...hordes of extremists who were hell-bent on killing Americans...blow up U.S. embassies...in an attempt to kill or capture American citizens," the resolution reads. The resolution calls for the United States to "depose" the government of Mogadishu and send troops to Somaliland and Puntland in an attempt to quell the pirates.

There are currently 18,000 U.S. troops in Iraq

Tiong Bahru, or Tiong Bahru Road, is a road located in the West Coast of Singapore's central business district. It was officially named after George Tiong Bahru, who was an estate (common land) owner in the area and a philanthropist. With the construction of the North South MRT line, Tiong Bahru is also home to the Tiong Bahru Depot, the largest railway maintenance workshop in Singapore. History The road was built by the Estate Agents' Board of Singapore in 1873. Before the Japanese took over Singapore, Tiong Bahru was used as a cemetery for the soldiers of the British Forces. As part of the Allied Occupation, the bodies were generally exhumed, then reburied elsewhere. This practice ended in 1978. The Tiong Bahru Road Hospital was completed in 1873 and is Singapore's first hospital. Until 1933, a wooden building, The Marcus 0cc13bf012
