Works with your library of bookmarks to ensure you can always rejoin any conversation with ease. ##Description There are thousands of IRC servers and chat rooms available on the Internet. The distinguishing feature of the Internet is the ability to keep all of the communications in a single location, in a database, called a server. Making use of this ability was a basic concept behind the development of IRC. ##Features * User-friendly interface * Easy-to-use interface * Log-in, join a server and chat rooms, all in a matter of seconds. * Logging in, joining a server and then a chat room is easy to do and you can start chatting with people in a matter of seconds. * Bookmark channels * Create multiple profiles * Easy handling of connections * Makes an easy transition from the CLI interface. * It's free and open-

IRCDetect by Rejvit Software is an application for Windows computers that is a combination of an Internet Relay Chat and a Remote Desktop Connection client. The program is also referred to as an IRC client. The software is designed to provide general functions for modern IRC users. It gives all users the opportunity to be able to communicate on the Internet using the Internet Relay Chat (IRC). The unique feature is that an embedded Remote Desktop Connection (RDP) is offered as well. This allows the user to use a virtual desktop, for example, under Windows XP/Vista/7. The user no longer needs to be connected to the Internet to use this part of the program. This means that the user can connect remotely to a virtual desktop which is nothing more than an image of a normal Windows OS. The user can see all available desktops as well as a top-bar with the following functions: Start, Connect, Chat, Send, IPCheck, Settings etc. The user also has access to a picture tool which is useful for creating avatars and images. The user can create multiple profiles and even edit them. IRCDetect by Rejvit Software is a useful tool for those who want to connect to the Internet using the Internet Relay Chat. many as 50 miles. This makes many broadcast stations unusable at night, and requires many more miles of transmission cable. FM stations use only the ground wave, and thus have a very limited footprint. ## What's New In?

PIRCH98 is an application designed to be an alternative to the IRC client. It is similar to mIRC but right from the start, when you run it, the differences are visible. User-friendly interface PIRCH98 displays an interface which should be familiar to a former mIRC user and at least comprehensive to a new user. The main features of the application are made available in a top toolbar and in menus which provide quick access to everything you need. Logging in, joining a server and then a chat room is easy to do and you can start chatting with people in a matter of seconds. The chat environment is like that of other IRC clients, separated into the general discussion area and a channel or user list. Bookmark channels Today, very few people use IRC clients and PIRCH98 is no exception but despite this, there still are tens of channels available and the bookmarking feature works just as well. In the relatively recent past, when this kind of application was popular, having a bookmark feature meant that you can easily store channels in a well organized library so you can always rejoin those that offered the most fun or interesting conversations. Create multiple profiles When connecting to a server, you have to select the IRC network, address, enter your name and email, choose a nickname and an alternate for it. You can also toggle to remain invisible to the server. To spare you the time normally spent re-typing every bit of information when you want to connect, PIRCH98 allows you to create a profile and save it under a custom name. A simple IRC client All-in-all, there is a lot more to mention about PIRCH98, but the bottom line is that this type of software still exists today thanks to those who won't let a piece of chat history die. By today's standards it's obsolete and unappealing. PIRCH98
