AutoCAD users may communicate with each other using the AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT channels of the Interactive Data Display (IDD) Services and a network consisting of Local Area Network (LAN) and Wide Area Network (WAN) interconnections. Users may also directly connect to the server of AutoCAD Services for communication using direct Data Connection (DC) or online Data Transfer (OT). Climb one of the most famous hills of Sao Paulo, Botofogo, Sao Paulo, Brazil. The area boasts a beautiful panorama and the Ciui - Iriri natural reserve offers hundreds of kilometers of trails for trekking and hiking. One of the must-see sights in the city is its colorful backdrop, where high-rise skyscrapers face the calm waters of the Sao Paulo Bay. The best way to get there is by taking the "Tiete" tram. Saab is an automotive manufacturing company based in the city of Trollhättan, Sweden. Saab produces, among other vehicles, cars under the name Saab (säkerhetsavdelningen). Founded in 1927 as a car manufacturer, Saab changed direction in the 1960s when it produced advanced "research vehicles", including the Saab 105 and the Saab 92. The Saab 96, which was a front wheel drive prototype, was one of the first European automobiles to incorporate a front engine layout. The car was aimed at the U.S. market, but its development was cut short due to a lack of sales. Another strategy implemented by Saab was the practice of hiring talented engineers away from a competitor. In 1989, Gullwing was reintroduced by Saab as a badge engineered version of the Opel Olympia A, but the sales of the car failed due to poor sales and high prices. Saab's most successful models to date are the 9-3 (2004) and 9-5 (2007) SUV and the Saab 9-2X (2011). One of the best places to visit in the city is the suburb of Stena Line, because the beaches of Alkimos, a part of the nearby Lagos de Castelo Branco Municipality, are very beautiful, with its rolling hills, vast beaches and shady rainforests. In the town of Alkimos, tourists may visit the Saab Museum, the Ramiro Peçanha House (an old farmhouse
