"I think he's almost going to win. I think it's going to be close, but I think he's almost going to win. So he's slimy and all of those reasons, I think it's also going to have an impact on the ballot counting," McCarthy said, referring to Moore's campaign donations. ADVERTISEMENT McCarthy also said that Republican leadership in the Senate is worried about Moore and that Moore's election would do serious damage to the party. "Well, I think it does concern our Republican leadership because he's an unpredictable guy. He's been kind of like the vote you want to look out for, but we've got to also think about the polarization. At some point, if you keep giving these leaders a list of people who — good, evil, bad — people who we're just going to to destroy our country if they get elected," McCarthy said.
