I've been using the Google GMAIL API, which allows you to send emails, but I want to make sure I'm doing it the correct way. Here is how I have it setup: First, in my Google API Console I have a project created and configured properly. Then, I generate my first API key, allowing to access a Google account and the necessary scopes: Then I generate my Java Mail API Key, allowing me to send emails: Then, I generate a subject and a message: A valid from address is required by the web server used by my app. But I don't know what address this should be. Do I put the name of the account I'm using to create the message, the name of the account I'm using to access the mail server...? Does Google use my API keys to verify I'm using the correct account? A: Unfortunately, Google does not provide information about the From address at the moment: The answer is that the
