Structure and functional expression of cDNA encoding rat MHC class II molecules. A 6.5 kb cDNA fragment encoding MHC class II molecules was isolated from a spleen cDNA library using RT-PCR and sequence homology analysis. The 3' untranslated sequences contain a putative polyadenylation signal and multiple poly-A sequences. The complete cDNA sequence of rat MHC class II alpha and beta chains was determined. The alpha and beta chain mRNAs are 1230 and 1225 nucleotides long, respectively. The amino acid sequence of the deduced alpha and beta chain proteins are of 226 and 223 amino acids, respectively, and show high sequence identity with other rat class II alpha and beta chain sequences, which are 100% and 84% similar, respectively, to the human sequence. Rat class II alpha and beta chain cDNAs contain single open reading frames encoding the complete alpha and beta polypeptides, respectively. The mRNA transcripts of alpha and beta chains were detected in a wide variety of rat tissues. In vivo transcription was demonstrated in thymus by the identification of protein products, indicating that both alpha and beta chain genes are actively transcribed. Transfection of rat APC cells with the rat class II alpha or beta chain genes resulted in the synthesis of surface expressed class II alpha and beta chain proteins, indicating that both alpha and beta chain genes encode functional class II molecules. These results demonstrate that the rat MHC class II molecules have a high level of amino acid sequence similarity with
