as mentioned earlier, the mcafee virusscan enterprise can be used as a standalone product, independent from the standard enterprise edition or provided as part of an existing enterprise product such as mcafee network security. this product supports active it systems such as dlp, ids, email/spam filters, vpn routers and applications such as exchange server, and will help in the management of applications and network deployments. it does not work with any of the legacy mcafee and mcafee mobile systems. unlike the other mcafee enterprise, it is not pre-activated by mcafee and requires a communication and synchronization process with the mcafee mbox as mentioned above. it requires mcafee enterprise and cannot be combined with any other mcafee product. mcafee virusscan enterprise version 8.8 adds a wide variety of technologies to address challenges faced by businesses, organizations, as well as households with antivirus solutions. of course, for the personal to work with other existing products, they will also need to subscribe to existing product subscriptions, or may need to subscribe to other products in order to be able to use such products. the most significant improvement in version 8.8 is the mcafee built-in email security engine. this new development makes mcafee email security a viable option as a standalone product or in conjunction with mcafee network security. it should not be confused with the other mcafee solutions and will not provide protection against your email messages. it only provides the ability to identify and quarantine malware and such threats and also provides a means to control access to these messages.
