Location Lac des Alouettes is just north of the eponymous neighbourhood of Gatineau, in the southern part of the city, near the downtown core. Its north shore is delimited by the Manoir du Roch (or the "Manor house") and the Governor General's Award winning "Burgundian House", that is to say the seat of the Parliament of Canada (the official residence of the Governor General of Canada). It is bounded on the east by the eastern entrance to Manoir du Roch. It is bounded on the southeast by the wide boulevard Francois-Perrault and by the Pic du Cerf. Its southern border is limited to the street Rideau Street (also called Anjou). Flora Fringed by birch trees, the lac is drained by the Péroue brook, a tributary of the Les Chutes-du-Lac Beauport (also called "River of Beauport") that, further upstream, is a major tributary of the Ottawa River. Birds The lake is full of Canada geese
