It can also even create a smart short video from your photos if you wish. The new iPad also supports 4K video capture at 60 frames per second. You'll see changes in almost every section of Photoshop (at least in some cases), but in this case, the biggest changes that we've encountered are found in the Liquify and Composite tools. Feature-wise, things are relatively the same minus the introduction of channel information that can be found in the separate Channels panel and the new Mask window. In terms of interface, we've been pleased with the new grab points, and live view in the 3D tools has been more useful for Mac users than we've seen it in previous runs at the Apple Design Awards. In this latest version of Photoshop, you can Import Media Layers from external storage devices and use a new way to duplicate and move media layers. You can also combine object layers into one layer and change the opacity of an adjustment layer. There's a Navigation feature to improve the search capabilities of the camera-based selection tools and increased support for editing in HD.
