The 12-lipoxygenase (12(S)-LOX) pathway and its metabolites have been implicated in the delayed neuronal death associated with ischemic stroke. Therefore, the present study was undertaken to elucidate whether this enzyme is up-regulated in the mouse brain following a brief episode of cerebral ischemia. Although no changes in the endogenous 12(S)-LOX expression level were detected 1 day after the ischemic insult, the 12(S)-LOX protein was induced transiently in astrocytes and oligodendrocytes, as well as microglial cells, at 3 days. The induction of the 12(S)-LOX was observed in the pyramidal cells of the CA3 region of the hippocampus and in the dentate gyrus. Microglial cells, astrocytes, and oligodendrocytes were stained immunohistochemically. Induction of 12(S)-LOX, induced by ischemia, was counteracted by blockage of microglial activation by local injection of minocycline, suggesting that microglia were one of the sources of the 12(S)-LOX.
