What I have is this: if (deleteSomeObject == null) { deleteSomeObject = cloneDeep(superObject); } else { deleteSomeObject = cloneDeep(superObject); } This is probably bad practice, but I don't know the best way to approach it. This code is inside an object, and it keeps running into errors, such as function not defined. I am making a deep copy of superObject, which contains objects that are part of other objects. A: It's not clear that you want a deep copy. If you just want a shallow copy then you should use copy methods on the object, not the prototype chain. if (deleteSomeObject == null) { deleteSomeObject = superObject.copy(); } else { deleteSomeObject = superObject.copy(); } Q: Simultaneously using a list of text (or hyperlink) and the "Value" property (explicitly hidden in M#) I am trying to create a list of text and hyperlinks in UWP. I used XAML to create the list of two columns (one is the text, one is the hyperlink), both are in a DataTemplate inside the ListView. I can change the style of the text (by setting the "Foreground" and "FontSize"
